

FOR WHAT IT'S WORTH

*SPECIAL EDITION****

Continuing Education Track for Certified Homebuyer Education Professionals at 2011 State Housing and Energy Conference
Wednesday, August 31 and Thursday September 1

Deadline for reduced room rate: Friday, August 12

Call Embassy Suites at 405-364-8040

Registration Code - OWH

Act now to receive the conference rate of $109.

Conference registration form attached

August 31: The Updated Money Smart Train the Trainer.

10:30 – 5:00 This three-session program certifies you as an FDIC Money Smart Trainer. The FDIC has greatly improved the Money Smart curriculum and this is your opportunity to familiarize yourself with this great tool for financial literacy and homebuyer education. Al Coleman, FDIC Dallas Regional Office

Thursday, September 1

8:30 – 10:00 Counseling Homebuyers about Distressed Properties. Foreclosed properties can provide a real bargain but there are things your homebuyers should know. Katrina Washington, Stratos Realty

10:30 – 12:00 Green Living. Many people seem interested in reducing their carbon footprint or having less negative impact on the environment. Everyone is interested in saving money. Which practices actually have an effect on these issues? This session will focus on green practices, how they can be implemented, and whether or not they save money. Dr. Sissy Osteen, Oklahoma State University

1:30 – 3:00 Making Financial Literacy Interesting. You don't know how much fun you can have with Financial Literacy until you attend this training. It's a blast! Join us. Liz Bradon and Melissa Crawford, Oklahoma Money Matters

3:30 – 5:00 Internet Homebuyer Education. We'll look at the internet from two perspectives: the information (and misinformation) it provides homebuyers and the possibilities the technology provides for delivering homebuyer education. Could we? Should we? Tricia Auberle, OHEA

For What It's Worth is a service for members of the Oklahoma Homebuyer Education Association. We welcome your response to the items reported or other information you would like to share with homebuyer education professionals. Send your responses to Tricia Auberle at HomebuyerEd@okacaa.org